ANNEXURE 'A'

Explanatory note on the Development Plan for the controlled Area at Jind.

INTRODUCTION

Jind once a part of the princely state remained neglected for many years, even after independence when it first became part of PEPSU and was then made Tehsil headquarter. With the formation of the State of Haryana, Jind became the district headquarter. To help the economic development of this backward district, decision to locate industries like a milk plant and tannery was taken. With these decisions Jind is expected to change its economic character from rural to urban. This naturally calls for planned and regulated development of this town and area around it.

The population of Jind town according to 1961 census was 24,216 whereas in 1951, it had a population of 19,450. The present estimate of population places the figures at approximately, 40,000. The rise in population between 1951 to 1961 was slow but during the last decade with the formation of Jind as district headquarter the rise in population is quite appreciable.

In order to channelise the growth of the town and to cater the residential, commercial and subsidiary requirements of the anticipated population of 80,000 by 1991, in a co-ordinated manner, the area around the municipal limits of Jind was declared as Controlled Area,—vide Government notification No. 100-VII-DP-68/73, dated 5th January, 1968 published in the Haryana Government Gazette dated 23rd January, 1968. Subsequently the draft development plan was published,—vide Haryana Government Gazette No. 9247-VDP-71/3777, dated 3rd September, 1971 and appearing in Haryana Gazette dated 21st September, 1971.

Jind town is centrally located in the State of Haryana and is well connected by a network of roads and railway, with most of important cities in Haryana. It is situated on the Patiala-Narwana-Rohtak State highway and is 121 Kms. from Delhi by road. Towards south, it is well connected with Hansi and Hissar. It is railway Junction, on Delhi-Ferozepur mainline and Jind-Panipat line. The town is viable for development due to the following factors :—

(i) Its upgradation as district headquarters with the formation of Haryana State.

(ii) Establishment of Milk Plant and Tannery Project.

Existing Physical Features.—Rohtak-Narwana-Patiala State highway passes through the town and the shape of the town has emerged into linear form. The existence of Delhi-Ferozepore railway line has warranted growth towards north. The existing old town is situated on the elevated tract and rest of the development is almost on the plain land.

The Hansi canala bisects the town into two parts thus creating two dominant urban Nuclii, consisting of the old town and second nucleus of development around Patiala Chowk, near main Railway Junction.

Growth Pattern.—With the decision to locate civil-station and urban estate on Jind-Gohana road, the residential development is taking place along this road. At present the town does not have any industries worth name except for some light and service industries on Hansi and Bhiwani road. A milk plant has already been established on the south of Ferozepore Railway line along the Hansi road. The commercial activities are concentrated along the main roads in the heart of the existing town.

Proposals.—As stated above the development plan has been prepared for population of 80,000 by 1991 with the presumption that besides the natural growth the establishment of civil Station, Urban Estate and the incentive or industrial activities will enhance the present population to the said projected population. The extent of the major land uses are as follows :—

1. Residential	.. 850 Acres,
2. Commercial (City and District Centre)	.. 75 Acres }
3. Civil State including Police line and Jail }	.. 237 Acres
4. Industrial (Light cum Medium Industries)	.. 460 Acres
5. Education	.. 40 Acres
6. Recreational (town park and green belt)	.. 200 Acres
7. Wholesale marketing and warehousing	.. 110 Acres }
8. Major Roads and communication net work	.. 290 Acres
9. Railway land	.. 100 Acres

1. Residential Use

The Development Plan has proposed an area of 850 acres inclusive of ancillary and allied facilities like community Centre, schools, and shopping etc. for residential use. The density will vary from 60 to 100 persons per acre. Most of the residential use has been restricted to North of the railway line, i.e. Delhi, Ferozepur and Jind Panipat Railway line. The whole of this area has been divided into eleven residential sectors.

2. Commercial Use (City and District Centre)

An area of about 75 acres has been reserved for city centres and district centre. The City centre has been proposed between northern ring road and existing old town; whereas the District centre has been proposed along Gohana road in the vicinity of civil station complex.

3. Civil Station Zone

An Area of 237 acres has been earmarked on the eastern side of the town between Jind-Panipat Railway line and Gohana Road in order to house the administration and other like public Road function of district headquarters. In this area the Police Line and Central Jail are also included.

4. Industrial Use

The area designated for industrial use covers about 460 acres with proposed average density of 25 workers per acre. The light and medium industries have been proposed to be located on the South West of Delhi-Ferozepur line, keeping in view the wind direction and the potentiality of development. Along with the Industrial Zone, the warehousing and wholesale marketing zone covering an area of about 110 acres has been proposed.

5. Educational Use

An area of about 40 acres has been earmarked for educational purposes in the close proximity of the proposed city centre.

6. Recreational Use

The major recreational area (town park) has been located along the Hansi branch, in between the Northern ring road and existing town in the vicinity of proposed city centre.

Major Road System.—The major road system is a compromise between the Grid Iron Pattern and spider web pattern and it provides the following type of roads with their land reservations as below :—

VI—Outer ring road	.. 65 metres
VIA	.. Existing width
V2	.. 45 metres
V3 Peripheral roads around the sectors	.. 32 meter

(Access from these roads will only be allowed at specified and controlled points.)

In order to properly connect the areas on the southern and south-eastern side of the railway line, with that of the northern side, over bridges on some of the important roads will need to be provided.

Rural Zone.—A sizeable area has been reserved as a rural zone. This zone will, however, not eliminate the essential building development within this area, such as the extension of existing villages contiguous to Abadi-Deh, if undertaken under a project approved or sponsored by Government and other ancillary and allied facilities necessary for the maintenance and improvement of this as a rural area.

Zoning Regulations.—The legal sanctity to the proposals regarding land use is being given effect to by a set of zoning regulations which form part and parcel of this Development Plan. These regulations will cover the change of land use and standards of development. They also elaborately detail out allied and ancillary uses which will be permitted in the various major land uses and stipulate that all change of use and development shall be in accordance with the details shown in the sector plans thereby ensuring the preparation of detailed sector plans for each sector to guide the development and enforce proper control.
